AGENDA

01 Global Campaign Identifier

Unique Identifier for a Campaign

02 Audience Name

Consistent Audience Names Across Channels

03 Other Ideas

Uses are Limitless

04 Q&A & Resources

Separate Templates for Separate Workstreams

Teams own their parts independently

There are many teams and data points in the creation of marketing standards practice
Each team specializes in their data points, such as creative, audience, campaign data

Use different templates in Claravine to connect teams and data

Each team can input their relevant data in Claravine to collect all campaign information in one place. For example:

- The media planning team can have a template for global campaign details, such as region/country, brand, product, agency, and advertiser.
- The creative team can have a template for all the asset names, sizes, and formats.
- The audience team can have a template for the objective, audience source, category, segments, initiatives, and other audience-specific information.

Ultimately, creating a standardized data model for your business

- Easily share enriched data from the specialized teams to the Ad Ops/Trafficking teams without additional clarification on inputs.
- Ensure that analytics has precise data from the specialized teams to produce detailed insights and actionable next steps to drive the business forward.

The Audience Name Template is only accessed by that team. It will require users input from a standardized list. Ensuring Ad Ops teams have the information they need.

All submission data is saved to a “powered” list.

A powered list is a collection of all submissions

All media naming templates reference the Audience Name “powered” list

Users select the Audience Name and all the fields used to create the Audience Name are brought in – Accurate audience insights!

03 Uses are limitless

Here are some ideas to get you started!

Example 1: Global Campaign Name for Publications

Template 1 is the Global Campaign Name. Fields could be agency, brand/product, account manager, campaign name, launch dates, etc.

Example:

Global Campaign Name = Health Information

Template 2 each Regional office creates the publication details and ladders up to the Global Campaign Name

Example:

Publications = About Vitamin D; Know Your LDL/HDL Levels; Normal Heart Rate Range

Example 2: Offer Codes

Template 1 generates the Offer codes

Example:

Offer Code = 20% Off for Black Friday (20BF shortened name)

Template 2 creates Display and Social Creative Name taxonomy templates

Example:

Social Creative Name Template =
US_FB_20BF_15s_ShopNow_20230420

Example 3: Creative Content

Template 1 correct creative asset details identified by a Creative File ID in a digital warehouse

Example:

Creative ID = 12345, identify the format type, size, background details, product, product color, asset filename

Template 2 agencies and Ad Ops teams pick the Creative ID per ad

Example:

Paid Media Template = select the Creative ID and metadata is pre-populated. Fields will automatically be included in the Creative Name taxonomy.

Utilize Adobe Experience Manager

Use a template to sync inbound Adobe Experience Manager, including AEM Asset ID and metadata.

The template can validate metadata from AEM using lists and field governance.

All submission data is saved to a “powered” list or collection of all submissions

All media naming templates reference the Asset Title “powered” list

Users will select the Asset Title and creative fields pre-populate based on the selection.

How to create a Powered List

Reminder: Think of Powered Lists as a collection, library, or lookup of all submissions on a template.

Step 1:

Create any Pick Lists that you need in your List-Powering template

Step 2:

Create the List-Powering Field Set

Step 3:

Create the List-Powering Template

Step 4:

Create a submission (at least 1 row) using the List-Powering Template

Step 5:

In the Pick List menu, create a new Powered Pick List. Recommend naming “Collection” or “Powered”. Make sure the first column of the list is the lookup value

- Hint: use the Move to Start.

Step 6:

Create a Powered Field Set using the powered pick list values hint use Import List function, note the powered fields.

- Add any other fields the user needs to input.

Step 7:

Create a Powered Template and reorder as needed. In the submission table, users select the column 1 value, all other mapped fields auto-populate
